W. L. THOMPSON DEEDS PARK TRACT TO CITY

BUYS 20 ACRES AS ADDITION TO SITE GIVEN BY HIS FATHER

Land Bought From Mrs. Anna Chamberlin and Others.

COUNCIL ACCEPTS

Wooded Section Adjoins Northside Picnic Grounds.

A 20-acre tract of land, acquired by William Leland Thompson, son of the late W. L. Thompson, donor of Thompson park, was deeded today to the city of East Liverpool as an addition to the park, named in honor of his father.

The cost of the acreage, bought from Mrs. Ann Chamberlin and others, was $1,500. Of this amount $1,150 was received from the Northside Wildlife Oil & Gas company as royalty for gas produced in Thompson park, while $350 was obtained from the W. L. Thompson trust fund set aside by the elder Thompson to assist in the maintenance of the park.

Members of city council, at a caucus in the office of Solicitor Hoover this morning, were advised of the transaction by Attorney William H. Votey and George A. Patterson, Thompson park commissioners. Council voted its acceptance of the land.

The tract adjoins Thompson park on the west and extends to what is known as the Car Barn road on the east. It has a good spring and a small brook. The land is heavily wooded.

The Automobile Enters Politics. Some Real Superstition. To Establish Safe Flying. Looking From the Sky.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review.)

THE AUTOMOBILE industry finds itself in politics. Mr. Raskob, finance head of the four billion dollar General Motors concern, is Democratic national chairman. Henry Ford is vice president of the Engineers' committee organized to work for Hoover.

Raskob says he is out to help Governor Smith "free the country from the curse of prohibition." Ford says he believes that Hoover will build up the nation and start enterprises that will give well-paid work to armies of men. Why not organize a Ford-Raskob debating tour through the nation? It would draw.

PROF. NICHOLAS ROERICH, traveling in Tibet, discovers, with apparent surprise, much superstition.

BUDDHA says you must not kill animals. Animals not wanted are driven to the edge of a hill, forced to fall over and kill themselves. Corpses are cut in pieces, thrown to the pigs and birds in open fields. The living roll on the dismembered dead "for good luck."

LAMAS count their profits instead of saying their prayers on their heads, says Prof. Roerich. They use human bones and squeaky conjurations to impress the superstitious natives.

Lamas drive away evil spirits with guns, for cash; tell your fortune with haunches of mutton, also for cash; you supply the mutton.

In short, they really are superstitious. Chinese and Japanese will take them over by and by, if they are worth taking.

WHILE STUNT FLYING, ocean and Arctic flying take their toll of life, careful, well planned flying establishes itself as part of the human program.

The twenty-one planes in the Edsel Ford flight reached San Francisco on Saturday, planes of all makes and styles, finishing the first leg in a flight of 6,300 miles to 32 cities and 15 states.

EDSEL FORD'S first prize will go to the plane carrying the greatest pay load, per horsepower, in the shortest time. This national air tour, emphasizing safety and efficiency, is a most constructive aviation enterprise.

THE VENERABLE Cardinal Lucon, of Rheims, 88 years old, flew over his cathedral and told friends how beautiful it was.

RUNS FOR MAYOR

Mrs. Elizabeth Towne, the first woman alderman of Holyoke, Mass., and an ordained minister of the New Thought movement, has announced she will run for mayor and has issued a warning to the ruling "political crowd" on what befell the 10,000 Philistines who were caught napping and smitten by 300 righteous Gideons.

OHIOAN GIVEN 366-DAY TERM ON MANN COUNT

George Rusnak of Steubenville Goes to Reformatory.

PLEADS GUILTY Alleged "Case Lot" Bootlegger Gets Prison Sentence.

COLUMBUS, O., July 17.—George Rusnak, of Steubenville, self-confessed Mann act violator, today was sentenced to a year and a day in the U. S. reformatory at Chillicothe when he appeared in federal court here.

Three other Steubenville men who have pleaded guilty to violation of the national prohibition act and who were to be sentenced this morning, did not appear in federal court. It is understood that they were granted a stay of sentence until tomorrow. They are George Nelson, Sam Bombay and Albert Masdonio.

Jack Morrow, alleged "case-lot" bootlegger here who also pleaded guilty to violation of the prohibition law, was sentenced to a year and a day in the Atlanta penitentiary. His alleged confederate, Richard McLaughlin, alias Merriman, was given a six months' term in the Logan county jail.

ROTARIANS HEAR DELEGATE REPORT

Report of the annual international Rotary convention held at Minneapolis, last month, was given by Charles R. Boyce, at today's luncheon of the Rotary club in the Y. M. C. A.

A report was prepared by E. H. Riggs, club's representative at the convention, who was unable to attend the luncheon.

Albert Froesch presided. The singing was led by Attorney Blaine H. Cochran.

Daniel H. Rupp, Oklahoma City, former city chemist and Robert Coffey, member of the Youngstown Rotary club, were guests.

REWARD IS OFFERED FOR ARREST OF MEN WHO STRIP ARROYO HOME

J. F. Beaver, Arroyo carpenter, today offered a $50 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of men who entered his home last Saturday night and made their getaway with about $400 worth of household furnishings.

The robbery was discovered Sunday by Lewis Beaver, brother of the owner, who lives on an adjoining farm. One of the tollkeepers on the Newell-East Liverpool bridge told Beaver that an automobile carrying rugs, bed cloth-

Brands Nominee as "Open, Avowed and Confirmed Wet."

Assailing Gov. Al Smith, Democratic nominee for president, as "an open avowed and confirmed wet" E. K. Bennett, West Sixth street grocer, dry leader and lifelong Democrat, today bolted his party's ticket.

In a statement to "my many friends," written from Los Angeles, where he is now visiting with Mrs. Bennett and members of his family, Bennett declared that "a voter has as much right to bolt a nominee as the nominee has a right to bolt a platform that was adopted with his knowledge and without his protest."

"For about five years," Bennett said, "I filled as best I could the position of chairman of the dry cause in our city. I am firmly convinced that prohibition is the best condition for all who live under the stars and stripes."

"In my opinion the greatest and most important question confronting the American people today is that of law observance and law enforcement. Respect for law as such no less on the part of those who are called upon to observe it than on the part of those who are sworn to enforce it must be emphasized if the republic is to endure."

Lincoln said that the nation could not "live half slave and half free. Neither can it hope to last half law-abiding and half law-defying."

In this emergency Governor Smith of New York, an open avowed, confirmed wet, has been nominated for president by the party to which I have given allegiance. His election, despite platform pronouncements and personal assurances, will be a direct and positive encouragement to many of our people further to flout the law as represented by the Eighteenth amendment and the national prohibition act.

"My party when it is right but some other party when mine is wrong; is the only slogan for red-blooded Americans."

Attend G. O. P. Convention.

Bennett, who left for California by automobile about six weeks ago, passed through Kansas City while the Republican national convention was in session. With the use of a cap for which he paid a telephone messenger 50 cents and a blank telegram, Bennett made his way into the convention hall where he listened in on one of the sessions.

THREE FEDERAL UNITS IN DRIVE ON RUM, DRUGS

Acting Secretary of Treasury Calls for Clean-up.

MILLS SHOWS WAY

Customs, Prohibition and Coast Guard Services Act.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Cooperation of the customs, prohibition and coast guard services to suppress the traffic in liquor and narcotics was specifically ordered today by Acting Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills.

In official instructions which went to all officers of these services Mills outlined the new treasury policy, evolved out of an exhaustive investigation of the situation.

While cooperation frequently has been urged among the various law enforcement branches of the treasury department, this marks the first time that an official order has been issued making it mandatory. It is taken to indicate that the government believes that concerted and unusual action must be taken to suppress the traffic in rum and dope.

Officers in charge of any branch or unit of the coast guard, customs, prohibition and narcotic services, stationed in the same city, were instructed to hold conferences twice monthly.

"The purpose of these conferences will be the interchange between officers of all information and evidence relating to violations of the law, coming within their respective jurisdictions, in order that they may be investigated and prosecuted in an effective and expeditious manner," Mills' instructions said.

Where two or more services unite in an investigation or where information or evidence supplied by an official of the situation.

FRANK DOMINIC IS FINED $100

HOOVER HOLDS CABINET PLACE UNTIL HE GOES TO WEST COAST

President Requests Him to Handle Certain Matters.

READY TO QUIT

Nominee Will Leave Superior for Duluth Today.

BY GEORGE E. DURNO. SUPERIOR, Wis., July 17.—Herbert Hoover will remain in the cabinet until after he has reached the Pacific coast.

President Coolidge let it be known today that certain matters are still pending before the department of commerce with special interest to the west coast that he wishes Hoover personally to handle.

The decision was acceptable to Hoover following a conference with the president. The secretary of commerce is anxious to relinquish his cabinet position so that he may devote his entire time to the campaign against Governor Smith, but he is willing to finish up his job as Mr. Coolidge wishes.

Three Names Stand Out.

Three names stand out prominently in the scramble for the commerce post—Walter F. Brown, of Toledo, present assistant secretary of commerce; William M. Butler, of Massachusetts, former chairman of the Republican national committee; and Julius S. Klein, director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce.

Brown is reputed to be Hoover's personal choice. The assistant secretary was relieved of his departmental duties to handle his chief's primary fight in Ohio at a time when that state looked to be the hottest battleground of the pre-convention campaign, and he is regarded highly by the Republican nominee. The appointment, however, will be into the Coolidge cabinet, and Hoover can do no more than suggest.

Butler is President's Choice. Butler is said to be the president's choice, but reluctant to return to public life. Many of his friends, nevertheless, say that, having retired from the committee chairmanship, and having been defeated for his seat in the senate, he would not need much persuasion to round out his career in the cabinet.

The third name that persists—Dr. Klein—would mean appointment of a career man. Klein has long been in the department and has the confidence of both the president and Hoover.

William V. Hodges, of Denver, former secretary of the Republican national committee, continues to be touted as the probable successor to Secretary Hubert Work in the interior department. Hodges and Work are personal friends.

Visits Summer White House. The Republican nominee came to Superior this morning with the president.

PROSPERITY, EFFICIENCY HOOVER ISSUES

G. O. P. Nominee Will Stress Coolidge Management.

GETS DAWES O. K.

Army of Orators Will Invade Every Hamlet.

BY WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON. CEDAR ISLAND LODGE, Wis., July 17.—Herbert Hoover was determined today to base his drive for his presidency on the two great issues of Republican prosperity and competent governmental management as evidenced in the Coolidge administration.

This was the principal development of the Republican nominee's conference with President Coolidge at the summer White House. These issues previously received the endorsement of Vice President Charles G. Dawes and of many high Republican leaders who saw the nominee before he left Washington.

Hoover will emphasize these two issues in his speech of acceptance to be delivered August 11 at Leland Stanford university in Palo Alto, California. They will be stressed, too, by party spokesmen all over the country and a great army of Republican orators who will invade every hamlet and town once the campaign gets under way.

AGREES TO PAY CRASH DAMAGE

James Dalley, arrested last night upon a charge of fast and reckless driving following an automobile crash in Pennsylvania avenue, was dismissed by Municipal Judge Hanley today, after he agreed to pay the damage resulting from the accident.

Dalley was traveling west in Pennsylvania avenue when his car crashed into another automobile driven by Joseph Barnhouse. No one was hurt. Fred Lamping arrested by Patrolman John Richards on a charge of fast and reckless driving in Pennsylvania avenue, was fined $1.00 and costs.

James Hunter was also arrested by Richards, charged with disregarding a red signal in the traffic light at the corner of Pennsylvania avenue and Mulberry street.

C. H. RISINGER AND HIS SON ROBBED AFTER FORCED RIDE

Two Men Commandeer Motor Car in Summit Lane.

GET ONLY DOLLAR

Guns Pressed Against Driver's Back on Four-mile Trip.

Charles H. Risinger, floor-man at the D. M. Ogilvie company store, and his son, Harold, proprietor of a Chester dyeing and cleaning shop, were kidnapped by two armed bandits in Summit lane, at 9 o'clock last night, forced to drive to Ross Meadows, robbed and then told to "walk back home" while the thugs fled in their victim's automobile.

Level Gun At Driver.

The Risingers walked to a nearby house where they reported the robbery. Another automobile was sent from town for the two men to their home in Chestnut street, where the robbery was reported to the police.

Young Risinger, at the wheel, and his father sitting in the front seat of their Hudson sedan, parked in Summit lane, near the side entrance to the First Methodist Protestant church, waiting for Mrs. C. H. Risinger, who was attending a meeting of a missionary society, when the hold-up occurred. The two bandits approached the motor car from the rear, one on either side. One of the men, whom young Risinger described about 18 years of age, asked to be taken "for a ride."

Leveling a gun at the driver, the spokesman opened the back door of the sedan while his companion, also armed, entered the door on the opposite side.

With guns pressing against the backs of the two motorists, young Risinger was ordered to drive west in Summit lane to Monroe street, north in Monroe street to Seventh, east in Seventh street to Jefferson, then down the Jefferson street hill to West Eighth and Lisbon streets.

At Ross Meadows, the driver was to run east on the dirt road which leads to the Youngstown & Ohio River station. A few hundred feet from the Lincoln highway the bandits ordered Risinger to stop.

Before ordering the two victims from the automobile, the bandits took one dollar from the elder Risinger and about 20 cents from his son.

Third Automobile Holdup. One of the bandits then took the sedan, stating that he was coming back to town to "pick up the gang," leaving his companion guarding the two victims. The driver returned 45 minutes later and was joined by his confederate.

With the remark that they would park the sedan in a "no parking zone" in Pittsburgh, where it would be tagged by police, the bandits drove away. Young Risinger believes the two.

SIX-YEAR JUNIOR AND SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL COURSE PLANNED

Superintendent Herlinger Says System Will be Established in Midland at Opening of Fall Term.

MIDLAND, Pa., July 17.—A six-year junior and senior high school will be established in Lincoln school at the opening of the term on September 4, according to plans announced last spring, Superintendent H. V. Herlinger said today.

To relieve the congestion which will result from the transfer of 250 additional seventh and eighth grade pupils, bids are now being received for the removal of a double portable building from grounds of Seventh street school and single structure from Fourth street school to a lot in the rear of Lincoln high school. Ninety pupils will be housed in the portables, according to Herlinger.

TUESDAY, JULY 17, 1928.

Drownings Increase

At least 27 persons, including five Ohioans, lost their lives in lakes, rivers and creeks over the week-end, according to a press association check-up.

Four were drowned in Chicago, nine in New York and nine in New England, seeking relief from the heat wave, although the mercury did not soar as high as reported last week, when the Buckeye state sweltered in the hottest period of the year.

Last year more than 8,000 lives were sacrificed in water accidents. The drowning deaths this year, judging from the toll exacted during the last month, when four lives were lost in the East Liverpool district, will surpass the 1927 figures unless swimmers learn the lesson of "safety first."

Too much is taken for granted by men, women and children who go to swimming holes for a day's outing. For instance, Beaver creek, a favorite place for picnickers, which so far this summer has claimed two lives, is extremely dangerous for wading and swimming, because of many "sink holes."

As a swimming instructor suggests, parents should be sure that a capable swimmer is on the job when children are in the water, and there should be no "chance taking" on the part of novices, and don't tax your strength by attempting to swim great distances.

Swimming is a wholesome exercise, but common sense rules of safety should be the first thought of persons who participate in the summer sport.

War Supplies For Farm

The federal department of agriculture makes the announcement that supplies of war-time explosives, which had been turned over to it for distribution among farmer of the United States, now are exhausted.

More than 3,100 carloads of deadly explosives were taken out of the shells to supply nitrogen more beneficially than by pushing shells all over a battlefield, and this considerable supply may be taken as a fairly good measure of the state of preparedness in which the close of the war found this country, as well as of the extent to which salvage was resorted to in order to give aid to a peace-time industry.

The department of agriculture explains that the explosives were distributed with special emphasis on the clearing of land for the growing of crops. Considerable quantities were also used in the building of roads. It is unlikely that many of the recipients knew of the processes necessary before these military supplies could be rendered fit for civilian purposes.

Picric acid was packed into cartridges and disposed of without further treatment. But the TNT—or trinitro-toluol—had to be combined with sodium nitrate, and the smokeless powder had to be converted into pyrotol. This was done in order to make the stuff safe for handling by non-expert laymen, since farmers could not be expected, in a majority of cases, to enlist the services of trained artillerymen.

Important, it would seem, is the statement that a high degree of cooperation was found indispensable to distribution. Substances of the nature of pyrotol can not be transported in small lots, like ordinary freight. They must be handled in full carloads and forwarded in accordance with the laws of the states and the regulations of the interstate commerce commission.

Of course, the average farmer could not afford to purchase an entire carload at a time, and it was the farmer with land to clear that the government was most anxious to reach. The hookup was effected through the agency of the agricultural extension services of the various states, which, in their turn, worked through local organizations of farmers, thus consolidating orders of a great many individuals. Otherwise the enterprise could not have been successfully completed.

Both as an evidence of what can be accomplished by cooperative methods and by reason of the addition of large areas of destumped land to the total now under cultivation, the scheme was of great service to society.

Northwest Development

That vast stretch of seven northwestern states, from Lake Superior to the Pacific, which was first traversed by a railroad only 45 years ago, will be an empire of more than 16,000,000 people—more than double its present population—within the next quarter of a century.

Such was the prospect presented by the late Howard Elliott, chairman of the Northern Pacific Railway company, whose lines first linked the Great Lakes with the Pacific.

The seven states—Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon—have increased their population twelve-fold since 1870, while the population of the country as a whole was only trebled during the same period. In 1870 the combined population of these seven states was only 604,359, while today it is 7,723,000, while the railroad mileage of 170 was only 1,316 as compared with 53,260 today.

The development of this northwestern area of the United States has only begun. Minnesota, the most populous of these states, has but 30.2 people to the square mile, as compared with 122 in Illinois, 99 in Delaware, and 51 in Georgia. Oregon has but 8.8 people to the square mile, and Montana but 4.4.

Natural resources now lying dormant in the seven states are capable of supporting several times the present population in comfort. More than half of the timber supply of the nation is in the northwest. Approximately 50 per cent of the water supply resources also are there. There is iron, lead, zinc, gold and building stones and an unexcelled means of transportation, not only by railroad, but by very good highway.

Ohio offers additional evidence that women has won a place in the political sun. By reason of a recently enacted law, both men and women will be chosen members of the state central committee at the August primaries.

The death sentence in the "Toledo slugger" case probably will prove a deterrent to insanity pleas in Ohio murder trials.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 17.—The first men who found precious stones or gold nuggets in the earth doubtless attached some value to them because of their native beauty but mineral deposits of a based character held no such attraction. In later days—scores of centuries later—many of these despised minerals were found to be in some respects more valuable than the jewels.

The story of the curious mineral, gilsonite, is an excellent example. Bituminous coal was discovered long ago and its heating properties recognized but anthracite, a more valuable fuel, is relatively new. Anthracite had long been known in Pennsylvania fields but was regarded by the farmers as no more than so many hard, black stones. It is almost within the memory of living men that the discovery first was made, at Phoenixville, Pa., that the black stones would burn and give off more heat than soft coal.

About the time of the Civil war, according to the Bureau of mines, veins of a brilliant black substance were discovered in the Ashley Valley of the Utah basin in Utah. Utah was not then a state but was about the wildest country of the wild west and the Utah basin the most forbidding part of the region. Hardy prospectors who came upon these veins were of the opinion that they had discovered coal. But when they set it afire it did not act like coal. True, the substance gave off heat but one could not make use of the heat because the burning was accompanied by great clouds of dense black smoke and an almost nauseous odor. Moreover, instead of leaving ashes, it was found the substance merely melted down and drew out into stringy ropes which solidified.

Whatever the substance was, it was abandoned as being useless.

But there seem always to be men of an inquiring turn of mind whose curiosity prompts them to persist in trying to find out what a newly found substance is and what, if anything, it is good for. Such a man was Samuel H. Gilson, an early adventurer into this wilderness. He experimented with the substance and the few settlers and prospectors in the region thought he was wasting time and energy so needlessly that in decision they called the black substance gilsonite.

Later, when Gilson's experiments finally developed that the black substance was an especially valuable form of asphalt, the nickname stuck and gilsonite now is known practically throughout the world.

It is a curious irony of circumstance that this same region had been tramped over many years by prospectors in search of a fabulously rich gold mine. The Utah basin takes its name from the Utah tribe of Indians. The first pioneers picked up legends of a hidden gold mine these aborigines had discovered. They exhibited huge nuggets, trading them to the white men for firearms and other manufactured articles but they never would vouchsafe any information as to the location of the mine. They described it as a hillside verily strewn with huge nuggets. Years passed and the tribe diminished in numbers, in fact was almost exterminated. Yet no white man ever found the Midas hoard. A generation and more later it had come to be known as the Lost Mine of the Utahs and to this day still is referred to by that name.

Meantime, fortunes have been made out of the despised black substance.

The uses of gold and precious stones are few and they will be cheerfully exchanged for materials of greater actual utility. Take the once wasted substance, gilsonite. The highest grade of varnishes employ it as an essential ingredient and paints also use it. It is ideal for insulation of electrical apparatus and as such apparatus is increasing in use every hour so the demand for gilsonite increases. The sepihed ink in which the rotogravure sections of Sunday newspapers are printed now find gilsonite practically indispensable for the best product.

The lowest grade of gilsonite has the largest use. It is employed in the saturation of felt. Here again may be seen the seriously inverted manner in which values develop. When gilsonite first was mined the grade was entirely ignored. It was not even removed from the mines but the miners worked around it. Today, after discovery of its use in felt saturation, it constitutes one-half of the substance sold. Saturated felt is waterproof and is used in the manufacture of patent roofing materials and floor coverings. A glance at any newspaper or magazine advertising section will give an indication of how large a volume of such products are sold. Nearly all of them are making gilsonite worth more than the Lost Mine of the Utahs.

There have been several disastrous fires in the gilsonite mines because of its highly inflammable nature. It is impossible to use lights so the mining is done from the surface, the miners working only by the daylight which comes from above. They become accustomed to mining in the half light. All work must be done with the pick. The dust of gilsonite is highly explosive so dynamite can not be used as in all other mines. The bureau of mines has made careful surveys of the Utah basin, apparently the only known place of deposit of this valuable substance in the world, and declares the stores of gilsonite to be practically inexhaustible.

NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, July 17.—While Tammany Hall is being devoured by the insatiable maw of the building wreckers, another famous landmark, hard by, becomes only a memory. The newspaper comment about its passing was slight.

The building is no longer known as Tony Pastor's theatre but as such was indelibly fixed in the minds of the last generation. Pastor's and Tammany Hall were joined in two places though this was not apparent to the casual passer-by.

The original Pastor's was on the Bowery but it came uptown to 14th street in 1875. No theatrical institution in the world turned out so many stars as Pastor's. Scores who began at Pastor's for their "coffee and cakes" went to shine effulgently in the Broadway heavens.

It flourished in the unregenerate day of "the hook," and a performer had to be good to remain a week. If he remained for two weeks, he could appear any place in America. The Pastor audience was devoted and regular, and few acts remained for more than two weeks.

Among the Pastor players were Fritz Williams, Sam Bernard, Lillian Russell, Mrs. Annie Yeaman, Amelia Summerville—remember her in the Black Crook?—Vesta Tilley, Vesta Victoria, Louise Dempsey, Bessie Bonnell, Joe Weber, Lew Fields and Nat C. Goodwin.

Also Maggie Cline first sang "Throw Him Down, McClosky" at Pastor's. Francis Wilson who became one of America's best and richest actors, used to do a refined song and dance at Pastor's. Dan Sully, Hugh Fay and Billy Barry were quondam entertainers, too.

Eddie Foy came out of the sticks to click at the music hall. Among others who received the Pastor applause were McIntyre and Heath, Jimmy Powers, Charlie Evans, Old Hoss Hovey, Billy Scanlon, Pat Rooney, Charles Ross and Mabel Fenton and George M. Cohan. A grand place was Pastor's.

A friend last evening was completely upset. He had just left three re-sultants in a half hour because they were out of dishes listed on their menus. And before I left him he blew me out of the water for some imaginary offense. But I know how he felt. Murders have been done for lesser causes.

Due to the lazy capers of a Mexican train from San Luis Potosi to the border I once went 14 hours without food. In the coach was a scrawny and pining Mexican child whose whimpering annoyed me I childishly complained to the conductor. It happened to be his offspring, and with a snort of rage he pulled the bell rope to let me off the train. That helped me get over growing peevish when hungry. I'm all right now if no one feed me for days.

Men who swing big deals—and they are mostly swung at lunch in New York—rarely talk business until lunch is over. Experience has taught them about this. They know a hungry man is likely to be pouty and quibble over details. But with a well filled stomach he is inclined to be mellow and listen to reason.

Few realize the role appetite plays in our emotions. A noted actor can always appear at his best when his stomach is empty. He says he receives a stimulus over the prospect of a good meal at the finish of the play that spurs him to finest efforts.

A western paragrapher refers to me as a "part time humorist." Those who have had a first-class look at me insist I am comic all the time.

Despite complaints, I do not think my face is such a trial. A writer in just a second—Haldeman's Monthly some time ago touched upon my pulchritude in a personal way. You rather got the idea dogs barked, horses ran away and mothers hid their children when I passed by. Yet in St. Louis the other day a gentleman taxi driver mistook me for Rod La Roque. Of course he got a big tip, don't be ridle.

Going Nowhere Leisurely.
Maximum speeds in traffic are fixed by law. There is need also for fixing minimum speeds. The slow-moving road hog is a menace to safety, his own included.

You know the type. He is driving nowhere in particular and taking his time to it. Instead of keeping near the curb where slow traffic belongs he stays out near the middle of the road and no amount of persuasion from behind makes even a wrinkle on his dull brain.

If the highway has several lanes running in each direction this sloth at the wheel takes the lane supposedly reserved for those who know they are going somewhere. That is bad enough; he becomes a far greater nuisance, however, on roads only two cars wide. Then he flourishes in all his ingloriousness.

The only way to pass him is to swing into the lane of traffic going in the opposite direction; and that is difficult when travel is heavy. You may have to wait for a mile or several before the opportunity comes to speed by, and by that time there are half a hundred fretting motorists bottled up behind the laggard cursing the fate that set him behind a wheel.

Most drivers, of course, realize that going too slow is about as dangerous and far more exasperating to others than driving too fast. Of road hogs there are several breeds, but the one that gets the blue ribbon for pluggishness is the one represented by the man or woman who goes to sleep on the highway and forgets he has an accelerator. He should confine his driving to the wood lot.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

You should not be surprised if the people whom you meet during your Summer vacation pay little attention to you after the return to town.

Summer-made friends are not necessarily all-year friends.

There is a great difference between the association which Summer brings and that which Winter suggests.

Persons who might seem very friendly at the Summer resort often would not consider entertaining you in their homes.

In Summer people are looking for amusement.

There is a closer degree of friendship for those one entertains at home.

You may be merely an item on the programme of Summer diversion, of such a light nature that it brings no responsibilities and no social indebtedness.

Going to a Summer resort for the purpose of becoming friendly with those whom you could not approach otherwise does not amount to much. Like all fair-weather friends, Summer ones are fluff, as a rule.

If you understand them as such you may get a lot of fun out of new faces, new forms of speech, new ideas expressed differently.

But don't be disappointed if they prove surface contact.

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth A Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

In the face of serious illness, the average man becomes meek and admittedly helpless. As he gazes upon the suffering and weakness of the patient, he realizes how little he knows of things which bring comfort and help to restore health.

Most of us know little enough about how to choose our own food. A man may know everything else and yet not know what he really ought to eat. If called upon to make up a diet for a sick person, he would throw up his hands in surrender.

Suppose you were dealing with a person past middle life, suffering a violent bowel disturbance. What would you advise?

To have regular intestinal action, a healthy person must eat some foods which contain fibre. Every farmer gives his animals "roughage," the chief source of which is hay. It serves to supply the brush-like materials which sweep the lining of the intestine and assist in its cleansing. Roughage is equally important to the human animal. The brushing of the walls serves to stimulate the muscular coats of the intestine, producing the wave-like contractions which carry the waste substances onward and outward.

In "bowel complaint," the lining of the intestine becomes congested. It may become actually inflamed and sometimes ulcerated. The tissue grows more and more sensitive. Then food which contains the least possible amount of fibre may have just enough to raise havoc with the disturbed mucous lining.

On this account it is a great mistake, in bowel trouble, to eat any kind of tough, fibrous, or otherwise indigestible food. It is better to take no food at all for a whole day. If the bowels are "running off," it helps control the trouble to omit food entirely.

When the pain and fear lessen, simple feedings may be begun. Bear in mind one rule—never give any unstrained food to the victim of bowel disturbance, whether acute or chronic. Every fruit, vegetable and cereal should be run through a fine-meshed sieve. This removes husks, fibre and other substances which would irritate and further inflame the bowel lining.

Almost any fruit or vegetable can be given if it is treated in this manner. During the period of recovery, when appetite is fitful, it will make it a lot easier to nourish the patient if there is a variety from which to select the food. Straining the food makes it possible to have that variety.

Frequent feeding of very small meals is better than forcing the jaded appetite. With an assortment of broths, gruels, vegetables and fruits, you will coax the palate and provide the nourishment essential to recovery.

W. E. Q.—What can be done for itching piles?

Sees Mid-West as World Art Leader

Drab Country of Sinclair Lewis' "Main Street" Has Champion in Person of W. M. Grant.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — That drab Midwest of Sinclair Lewis' "Main Street," where cats droused among the canbages in the windows of smelly grocery stores, has a champion in the person of Walter M. Grant, of New York, executive secretary of the American Art Dealers' association.

The middle west, says Mr. Grant, already possesses outstanding examples of art, and will lead the world in the artistic in the immediate future generations.

The art authority, who is making a tour of the United States in company with his son, Gordon Grant, recently spent two days in Kansas City.

West to the Front.

"This country," Mr. Grant prophesied, "is obtaining the art treasures of the old world, and the midwest is going to go to the forefront; already has started."

Mr. Grant pointed out that where in the past military conquests had secured art treasures for the victorious nations, as in the case of Rome under the Caesars, and France, in the time of Napoleon, now America is making a "money conquest." He likewise believes that the homes of the wealthier Americans will become miniature art galleries which are to be reckoned with.

"America," Mr. Grant declared, "is making a money conquest in the field of art. All the great examples of painting, statuary, tapestry and other treasures, will be moving to America, except a few which because of sentimental or historical value, to other nations must be retained by them."

"Now then where is it that the start of culture in all the arts begins. In the home! Before a people as a whole develops its art appreciation and its own art production, first the homes must be developed."

"Kansas City is unsurpassed from that point of view. I have seen all that the east and most that the old world can boast, but never have I seen such a home section such as the southern part of Kansas City contains."

The home ideal established here, Mr. Grant pointed out, would lead to the rest.

"The home owner is not going to consider his life and home completed when his house is done," Mr. Grant said. He is going to reach out for the artistic and decorative things.

"That is why this middle west is going to lead America in obtaining the world's art treasures — it has the homes!"

Native Talent.

America, also, Mr. Grant predicted because it has wealth and the instinct for the artistic now can find full play, will develop its native talent to world leadership. The youth of today was starting the movement, he said, and the next generation would carry it to fruition.

The eastern art critic had especially high praise for St. Louis' open air Mumicipal theatre and the state capitol building at Jefferson City. "The Missouri capitol" he declared has set a standard for all the states. Architecturally, it is the most artistic public building in America, and the paintings, statuary, fountains, tapestries and other decorations, make it the leader in these considerations. "The Glory of Missouri in War," by Charles Hoffbauer which hangs in the capitol building, was the best painting to come out of the war, according to Mr. Grant.

Mr. Grant, in the capacity of chairman of the British bureau of information in America during the world war, handled the art and other exhibits sent to this country by the allies.

The Netherlands East Indies now have a population of 50,000,000.

MISS CARRIE LEONA DUNCAN BRIDE OF GEORGE L. HEEBNER

Ceremony Solemnized in Free Methodist Parsonage by Rev. A. L. Duncan.

Announcement was made today of the marriage of Miss Carrie Leona Duncan, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. A. L. Duncan, of Carolina avenue, Chester, and George Louis Heebner, son of Mrs. Louis Heebner of Ephraim street. The ceremony was solemnized Monday, July 9, in the parsonage of the Free Methodist church, with the bride's father officiating. Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Heebner left for a honeymoon with relatives in Pittsburgh and Bradford, Pa. They are now at home with the bridegroom's mother. (That Is — Plain Goat)

There is a lot to be said for the animal. He's nimble, inquisitive, smart, cheerful and energetic. He has good eyesight and a peach of an appetite for tin cans. But—

The goat that you and I know so well is the lad who never picks the right place to go and always arrives where he is going at the wrong time.

He is easy picking for waiters, they give him the bum tables and the poorest food and service. He misses all the best sporting events and goes to hear the world's worst concerts.

He is the same chap that would attend the first day of horse races and the last night of a musical comedy. The ticket selling Johnnies always know him and give him the rotten seats.

DETROIT SEES 35,000 MEN IN K. T. PARADE

Quarter of Million People Cheer Marchers.

CONCLAVE OPENS

Two Hundred Thousand Lodge Men and Wives in City.

DETROIT, July 17.—Detroit today was treated to the greatest spectacle in the history of Masonry when 25,000 Knights Templar paraded through the downtown streets.

A quarter of a million people on housetops, in windows, on porches, in grand stands along the line of march and at the curb watched the seemingly endless procession.

After the last parade unit had disappeared, the grand encampment officers met in Masonic temple where the gavel fell on the first business sessions of the thirty-seventh triennial convocation.

While the grand officers were transacting business the majority of the 200,000 Knights and their wives, renewed the ceaseless round of entertainment.

BOOST CHICAGO "L" ROAD FARES

CHICAGO, July 17.—Effective tomorrow at midnight fares on the Chicago elevated lines will be boosted to 10 cents straight. Heretofore they have been three rides for a quarter.

AERIAL BOMB INJURES 25

Defective Fireworks Blamed for Swissvale Accident.

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—A defective aerial fireworks bomb today was blamed for the injury of 25 persons and a panic among 3,000 others who gathered to witness a pyrotechnic display in honor of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, between Swissvale and Rankin, suburbs, late last night.

The bomb was fired into the air but failed to explode and descended into the crowd. There it exploded burning 11 persons seriously, and causing a panic which police were called to quiet. The bomb sent a spray of small shot which struck 14 others.

Police commandeered automobiles to rush the victims to nearby hospitals and homes. It was thought that many failed to receive medical attention, fleeing to their homes after being burned or struck by pieces of shot.

CHURCH OUTING ON WEDNESDAY

car of one service is utilized by another "full credit shall be given to the service of officer entitled thereto in the final report of the case," according to the order. This method was taken to keep up a better spirit in the services and to stimulate cooperation.

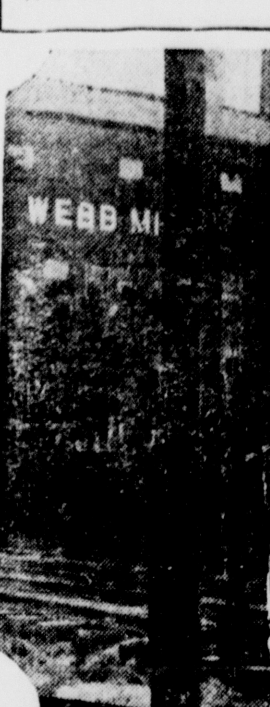

Smooth Out Problems

"Any difference of opinion as to the scope of a particular investigation, or as to the service that shall be primarily responsible, should be discussed and settled in a friendly exchange of views, keeping in mind at all times the purpose to be achieved and the necessity for unified harmonious action," Mills said.

"Problems difficult of solution, or in regard to which an agreement may not be reached, shall be submitted to the bureau in Washington and final decision shall be effected by conference between the heads of the services."

The cooperative action was taken up today at the national gathering of prohibition administrators. The conference, meeting with commissioner James M. Moran, is endeavoring to smooth out many perplexing problems of enforcement and to bring about an application of the law in a manner least offensive to the public. Because of the approach of the election and the fact that prohibition is one of the big issues, administrators were urged to bring about "gentlemanly" as well as effective enforcement.

75 WITNESSES ARE CALLED IN SOUTHERN QUIZ

Tell of Alleged Buying of Public Offices in Biloxi.

TRIALS IN FALL

Two Indicted Men are Suspended From Duties.

BILLOXI, Miss., July 17.—Seventy-five witnesses remained today to be called before the federal grand jury here investigating alleged sale of public offices in Mississippi.

The trials of Perry W. Howard, Negro national committeeman for the Republican party in Mississippi and six others indicted by the grand jury so far, probably will be held at Jackson, Miss., in September, it was learned today.

The indictment returned by the grand jury specifically charges that Howard, Scott Hubbard, a former U. S. deputy marshal, S. D. Redmond, A. M. Redmond and Ed L. Patton conspired and received $1,500 for the appointment of A. O. Russell as a deputy marshal. Russell is one of the witnesses still to be heard by the grand jury.

Others under arrest as a result of the probe are J. S. Tammehill, former deputy marshal and William Miller, postmaster at Wiggins, Miss.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Perry W. Howard, Negro Republican national committeeman from Mississippi and attorney in the department of justice office, and Scott Hubbard, U. S. marshal for the southern Mississippi district, indicted at Biloxi, Miss., for conspiracy in the sale of federal offices, today were suspended by Acting Attorney General William D. Mitchell.

A formal order was issued by Mitchell, who at the same time said that the action did not "prejudice the case against the men."

DRIVER KILLED AS HE SAVES HORSES

NEW LEXINGTON, O., July 17.—The successful effort of a farmer to save his team of horses cost the farmer's life at a grade crossing at Basil, about 20 miles north of here shortly before noon today.

Henry Heiser, 60, of Basil, was killed by a fast passenger train at the Basil crossing as he was driving his team across the tracks. Heiser who was walking beside his team whipped up the horses when he saw the train approaching. The team was driven clear of the tracks but Heiser was in the path of the locomotive.

OHIO MOTORIST DIES IN CRASH

CINCINNATI, O., July 17.—Frank West, 43, connected with a Cincinnati branch of the Chevrolet company, was instantly killed here this morning when his automobile crashed into a pole. Police believe he was momentarily dazed as witnesses say he was driving slowly.

COLUMBUS, O., July 17.—Offices of the state highway department were shut down today while nearly 200 employees of the state department attended their annual picnic at Buckeye Lake.

spite the intimations from Premier Mussolini, of Italy, and Gen. Umberto Nobile that further aid from the Soviet is not desired evidently on account of the cost. It was indicated that there is an unwillingness to pay further expenses for the work of the Krassin.

A radiogram from the Krassin quoted F. Behounek, one of the Noble survivors, as saying he saw neither flames nor smoke when the Italia's envelope was carried away in a gale on May 25. He believes there is a possibility that the six men carried away with the gas bag may still be alive.

TODAY

tiful the noble building looked from the sky.

"I should not have risked it 29 years ago," said he. "It might not have seemed dignified. Everything is different now; one must keep up with the times."

WHAT do our spirits see, leaving our bodies. Do they look down on sleeping cities at night, busy farms by day? Do they see the other planets and suns, and the outside universes, 100,000,000 light years away, on their journey through space? Or do they awake instantly in heaven? Too bad if they have to miss all the things on the way.

NINETY political scientists, gathered at Des Moines, say the two-party system of governing this country will vanish after this election. A system of smaller parties, based on religious beliefs, economic theories, views on prohibition, labor, etc., will replace the elephant and the donkey.

IT IS HARD enough for the average voter to keep track of two parties. At best, his notion as to why he belongs to one or the other is vague. He would worry himself sick with a dozen parties to think about.

TURKISH Mohammedanism talks of changing its Sabbath from Friday to Sunday, for business reasons, and wants music in mosques.

The latter idea would promote peace in India, where Mohammedans often kill Hindus marching past mosques with music playing.

TWENTY-TWO thousand acres of wheat are damaged by field mice in South Dakota, the mice working over a tract many miles wide. Poisons probably will check the plague. On a previous occasion, in another state, sea gulls, mysteriously informed, flew far inland, and cleared out the mice.

A great danger is the frightful fertility among insects and small mammals, mice, rats, rabbits, etc., and a marvel calling for unlimited gratitude is nature's power to keep the balance. Any one of 10,000 insects breeding unchecked, would have human life on this planet impossible.

Prosperity Issue

The president himself will take an active part in the campaign, making at least two political speeches in the heat of the campaign. He was said to have given this assurance personally to Hoover. One of the president's addresses will be delivered in Boston. It was reliably reported, while another probably will be made in New York city.

The Republican nominee and Mrs. Hoover were the house guests of the President and Mrs. Coolidge at the summer White House since yesterday morning. The Hoovers will leave tonight to resume their westward journey to Palo Alto. The nominee will rejoin his train at Duluth, motoring there from the presidential lodge.

The Republican nominee was well pleased with his visit to the president. The 1,000-mile detour from his transcontinental trip allowed him to visit Wisconsin, a state which has been classed by some of the advisers as "doubtful" due to the prohibition issue. In Washington, the Republican nominee was told that Governor Alfred E. Smith, his rival, would carry the state on the anti-prohibition issue unless heroic measures were taken to hold it in line. Governor Fred R. Zimmerman and Walter J. Kohler, a Hoover leader, however, declared the state will go Republican by its usual majorities.

LaFollette "Fly in Ointment."

The "fly in the ointment" however, will be the attitude of Senator Robert M. LaFollette, youthful insurgent. "Young Bob" already has attacked both Hoover and the Republican platform. He is a pronounced "wet." Should he publicly bolt the Republican ticket and endorse Smith, the result here would be in doubt until the last ballot was counted.

By his visit to Wisconsin, his appearances before Wisconsin crowds and his participation in a reception in Superior, Hoover has tended to counteract the possibility of such a bolt.

A very light program faces Hoover president from the lodge to Superior for the executive's semi-weekly conference with newspaper men at 10 o'clock this morning. After that, they probably will go fishing again until Hoover has to leave for his train.

More than one half the 2,716 miles of railways in Algeria are now controlled by the government.

STEEL MAGNATE HITS DRY LAW

Samuel Mather Joins Anti-prohibition Association.

CLEVELAND, July 17.—Samuel Mather, steel and shipping magnate, one of Cleveland's wealthiest citizens today was a director on the board of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

Mather confirmed his membership to the association but refused to comment further other than saying that he was a director of the organization which declared "war on the 18th amendment" and favored home rule by states, "to do away with prevailing speakeasies and secret drinking, but prevent the reappearance of the old unregulated saloon system and the political iniquities which accompanied it."

Mather's acceptance was a big victory for modification in the liquor law, Benedict Crowell, former assistant secretary of war and also on the board of the association, declared.

Mather joined the modification association after Pierre S. du Pont, chairman of the association's board and chairman of the board of directors of the General Motors corporation and chairman of the board of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., conferred with the Cleveland magnate on the subject, Crowell asserted.

It was made possible largely through the generosity of Sir Richard Cartin, honorary secretary of the British campaign, who is bearing the entire cost of bringing to London the bulk of the foreign delegates.

Three hundred cancer specialists from all parts of the world are attending. Of this number about 25 came from the United States.

31 INSISTENT OFFERS OF HELP

A current issue of a newspaper of large circulation was found to contain 31 medical advertisements—by no means an unusual number. If there is any ache, symptom or form of misery that was not touched upon by one or another of them it would be hard to call it to mind. The reading of such a "medley" would be very amusing if it were not obvious that enough people heed them and practice self diagnosis and self medication to make their publication profitable to the advertiser. Don't you be the one to take a gambler's chance regarding your own health. Any time you think that you need medicine you will do well to get your physician's advice.

Loughran Wins Decision From Latzo In 10-Round Title Bout

Successfully Defends Crown Fourth Time in Eight Months; Pete Forces Scrap But Takes Terrible Pounding.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 17.—Tommy Loughran last night beat Pete Latzo in ten rounds and thus, for the fourth time in eight months, he climbed out of the ring with his light heavyweight championship intact.

It was a good fight; also an unusual one. Loughran won it with one hand, the left. This he used to nip, rip and bash Latzo's Slavic features almost to the point of monotony. I tallied it "six, two and two," giving Latzo none the better of the break, at that. Yet some of Loughran's winning rounds were fairly close and the two that I called even might have gone either way.

Loughran's one handed fight was far from orthodox. He held that right high all the way, seldom dropping it for a punch even when Latzo was

LOUGHNAN-LATZO FIGHT BY ROUNDS

Round 1.—Lato, robbed in purple tights, rushed the champion to a neutral corner and flailed his stomach with short left back. Tommy stepped out to rip his head back with a half dozen short right uppercuts. Tommy jabbed prettily with his left, boxed eagerly twice around the challenger and tied Pete up easily when the minor rushed him. Latzo pulled the champion to the ropes and dug his left deep in Tommy's body. Tommy held the challenger off easily with a snappy jab up to the belt.

Round 2.—Tommy's left pumped steadily into Pete's face, while Latzo smashed a vicious right hook to the head. Tommy slashed and jabbed the challenger's head with his deadly left, but Pete stuck his head in for more and escaped both hands to the champion's head. Blood trickled from Latzo's nose as Loughran planted career lefts into the challenger's features. Latzo drove a right through Tommy's guard and rocked him into the ropes with a volley of short hooks to the head just before the gong.

Round 3.—Vicious as a cat, Latzo clawed into the champion but could not get past Loughran's machine gun left hand. Tommy was cautious, drawing away most of the time, but a stream of lefts trailed behind him into Latzo's face. Pete pulled Loughran into the ropes again, the champion's weakest position, and smashed lefts and rights into Tommy's head. Tommy rocked a bit, but fought his way clear only to run into two rebounding crashes to the pit of the stomach. Tommy was boxing carefully at the bell.

Round 4.—Pete nailed the champ with a left and right to the head and Tommy rolled groggily into the ropes in a neutral corner. A crackling left hook opened a cut over Tommy's left eye. Pete dazed the champion with a left and right to the head on the ropes, but instead of ripping in to follow up his advantage, tried to box the champion in the center of the ring. A right sent Loughran flying back to the ropes, blood streaming down his face. Carefully Latzo followed him but Tommy blocked a dozen dangerous punches. As they slugged in the center of the ring, Loughran's knees bent under a crashing right to the chin, but he held Latzo off until the bell. The fight was so fierce that

Olympic Personnel To Stand

Elkins Fails to Win Place on Yankee Squad.

A BOARD'S S. PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT (via radio) July 17.—The personnel of the track team which will represent the United States at the Olympic games in Amsterdam remained intact today following the settlement of the Elkins controversy.

Fait Elkins' the Indian Decathlon star, has not recovered sufficiently from the effects of the injuries he suffered during the Olympic tryouts to permit his addition to the team. Major General McArthur, president of the American Olympic committee has ruled.

Elkins is now enroute to Amsterdam, however, at the expense of the New York A. C. and will view the games though he cannot compete. After a protest by the New York A. C., Elkins, who was considered America's brightest hope in the decathlon, was given a special tryout before he left for Europe. The results of the tryout showed his injuries had slowed him up in the 110 meter event to 12.45 seconds and brought his broad jump mark down to 19 feet, four inches. Both of these marks are below those of any of the four present decathlon entrants.

Miss Martha Norellins, the swimming star, is now recovering from a mild case of tonsillitis she contracted aboard ship.

DALE FRAZIER PISTOL CHAMP

Sergeant Dale Frazier, son of Mrs. Laura Frazier of 832 Fairview street, left his mark in the pistol championship at Schofield barracks, Honolulu, recently.

Frazier, who has given nine years of service to the army, competed in the pistol championships of the Hawaiian department small arms contests and finished with individual high honors, scoring 510 points for a gold medal award.

Sergeant Frazier, who is a member of Company F, Twenty-first Infantry, finished 11 points ahead of Lieut. H. F. Tolfooy, his closest competitor.

City Loop Entries Improve

Hot Race is Forecast in Second Half Drive.

Second half of the City Industrial Baseball league campaign will start tonight with all clubs showing a vast improvement of the form they exhibited just two months ago when the first games of the opening section of play were being turned in.

As a result of the improvement, contests in the second half will probably be closer and none of the clubs will likely get away with a lead such as the Wellsville nine, first half champions, established in the first month's play of the opening half.

The Wellsville Club's ability to snap into winning gear right at the outset undoubtedly won the pennant. For later on in the season when the other clubs warmed up to the issue, the decisions became closer.

Homer Laughlin, for instance, would have been right up in there had not been for forfeited games and with virtually the same lineup will likely be heard from this half.

The Chester squad was hugging second place closely prior to its withdrawal from the league and under the management of Jack Vanaman, catcher, will strive to maintain the pace it set with Riley at the reins.

The Katics will be a factor, too. After a mediocre performance for the first three weeks, the Potters jumped into the battle down the final stretch, finishing in third place behind Turk-Nash, losing two games more than the Motors, and displaying their capabilities by walloping Turk-Nash and Wellsville in successive days in the heat of the pennant fight.

"Cracker" Howell, obtained in a trade will be bolstered too, by Pitcher from Turk-Nash.

And other league clubs must not forget, too, that Turk-Nash will be in there this half.

Nosed out in the race for the first half flag by a bare half-game, the Motors proved their fitness and undoubtedly will be one of the leading aggregations down the concluding half.

The Wellsville club, of course, will be relieved of the strain of the pennant fight and, assured of a place in the final series, can afford to coast along. However, it is not likely that Manager Nicholson will choose this course. In all probability the first champs will give their best efforts in every game from now until the close of the season.

The Wellsville squad will go into action tonight against Jack Vanaman's squad at Smith Field, Chester. In the other game on the day's bill, the Katics will tackle Homer Laughlin at Newell.

Turk-Nash will be the home club in Wednesday night's tilt with Madison Billiards at Columbian park. Newell will make its first appearance of the second half at Wellsville.

White Sox Win Under New Pilot

Pale Hose Two-time Red Sox; Yanks Take Two From Tribe.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Seven straight for the Cubs and Pirates, and nine straight for the Phillies and Braves! The first two clubs are enjoying a winning streak, while the last two are in the throes of a slump.

The fireworks in the American league are being furnished by the Chicago White Sox. The same players who couldn't win under Cracker Schalk have copped eight of their last ten games under the management of Blackburne. The pale hose two-timed the Red Sox again yesterday, 4 to 0 and 9 to 1, with Faber and Blankenship doing the throwing. Boston is back in the old homestead, the American league cellar.

The Yankees took both ends of a double bill from Cleveland, 7 to 3 and 6 to 2. George Piparas hung up his 16th victory in the opener, when Ruth smacked his 35th homer. Honney Johnson twirled the Yanks to victory in the nightcap, in which Robert Meusel made four hits, including a homer, Pennsy Awaits O. K. of Commerce Commission.

Wellsville employees of the Pennsylvania railroad, as well as others throughout the system, will have an opportunity of purchasing stock of the company if a sales plan now being formulated, is successfully carried out.

The plan for selling 350,000 shares of the capital stock of the company directly to employees at $50 a share has been submitted to the interstate commerce commission for approval of the issue. The company will take no further steps until the approval is obtained.

The plan is outlined in two circulars which are to be sent to each employee of the company. One circular will be issued by President W. W. Atterbury and the other by H. H. Lee, treasurer. The employees will be permitted to subscribe for from one to 10 shares each, and payment is made by deductions from payroll of from $2 to $5 per share per month. String of Beads, Bark Apron; African Flapper Dressed Up

Miss Alice O'Brien Says Jungle Belle Is Smarter Than U. S. Sister

By SHIRLEY KIRKE
International Illustrated News Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK.—"She wears a string of beads, a bark apron and—smile! she carries her head with a jaunty air, walks erect and with an assurance that many a civilized woman might envy; and she is clean cut, beautiful of body and as tireless on the trail as the fawn tiger she so resembles."

The SHE in question is the African flapper, whom Miss Alice O'Brien, globe-trotter, asserts is better dressed than her American sister. Just returned from a seven months' exploration of the Belgian Congo, the American girl is convinced that the heart of darkest Africa is safer than the sidewalks of New York—and a lot more interesting.

"My experience is that Africa is more civilized than the average person dreams," she said. "It is queer, strange, but less physically challenging than the reminiscences of travelers indicate."

"The comfort of travel in the Belgian Congo flabbergasted me. I had a lot of preconceived ideas of what the hardships would be; and most of them were wrong. Old ladies who want to go to a warm climate for their health could attempt such a trip in perfect safety, providing, of course, they stuck to the main routes. They could not undertake safaris into uncharted wilderness as we did."

"At Stanleyville we sailed up the Congo in a big double-deck wheeler in deluxe suites. The old boat used to ply the Mississippi river—just fancy! It was taken apart, shipped to the Congo, then set up. Now it is one of a fleet of twenty vessels."

Perhaps Miss O'Brien's most thrilling experience came about when King Ntapi danced for her party in his chief village. His two hundred wives squatted on low pedestals of carved ivory, ranged behind him in a semi-circle. Silhouetted against the flare of a camp fire, Ntapi crouched, stalked and stamped, wearing a headress of hawk feathers, a leopard skin flung around him. His medicine men were there, too, to drive away evil spirits. These made mysterious passes at invisible beings, stabbing them lest they bedevil the king as he danced.

Following the ceremony the monarch was host to the party at a midnight supper which was served outside the village in a jungle grove.

FOOTBALL STAR IS RIVER VICTIM

Name of Anthony Reducca, 20, former Stenhouseville high school football star, was added today to the toll of victims taken by the Ohio river this season.

While Reducca and two companions were canoeing on the river here yesterday, their frail craft capsized in the middle of the stream. The three youths, all good swimmers, made for the shore. When but 15 feet from the river's edge, Reducca was seized with cramps and sank beneath the surface. His companions endeavored to rescue him but their efforts were fruitless.

Reducca was well known among local high school athletes, having competed against the Orange and Black on numerous occasions in football and basketball.

New Court Rules Popular.

The recent decision of the Imperial Household department to reduce the number of ladies-in-waiting in the Imperial Palace one-half is being hailed in Japan as a great step toward modernizing the country. The empress dowager at present is served by 45 high class ladies-in-waiting, who have their own servants numbering more than 140, and when the present mourning period for the late emperor ends, half of them will be discharged. Another innovation will be the granting of rights to ladies-in-waiting to live outside the palace, and to have husbands.

Here's a Beauty Hint; Flower For Your Color

Whether Cleopatra ever "stood up" Anthony for a permanent wave isn't clear even to the most erudite Egyptologist; but papyrus archives of the Cairo museum have revealed a beauty secret equally important—a secret, which, if it wasn't known to the Siren of the Nile, was almost certainly in the possession of her rivals.

Briefly, girls, it is the secret that every woman symbolizes some special flower—a flower from which she must, if she would be desired of all men, choose her coloring, her bodily fragrance and, to some extent, even her moods. In other words her toilette accessories and her mannerisms.

What could be simpler? Back from a trip to Egypt via Paris, one of New York's most eminent beauticians illustrates the ancient Egyptian recipe for beauty by using the trio of screen stars above—June Collier, Madge Bellamy and Sally Phipps—as her subjects. She says in part:

"Miss Collier is strictly, daintily feminine, somewhat reserved and aristocratic. Her's is the ORCHID type and if you favor her, your cosmetics should be peony rouge, a cream powder, violet eye shadow and the peony lipstick. Your colors are particularly cream and gray, but you also may luxuriate in wearing the popular pastel shades in clothes."

"Miss Bellamy is another type. This petite miss has a velvety skin, nut brown eyes and chestnut brown hair. She is a creature of moods, the so-called playgirl type. She is emotional, has daring actions. If you resemble her, you are that most popular

AMERICAN BEAUTY type. You should use rouge of a fuchsia shade, the most delicate of powders and the peony lipstick. Wear soft pastel tones, chiefly in yellows and browns. Your particular color is coral.

"But if you are of the Sally Phipps type of beauty—red-haired, boyish, strikingly youthful, you are the MORNING GLORY among women. You should use a touch of crimson rouge, vivacious powder, royal crimson lipstick, brownish eye shadow. Your clothes should be of the boyish, mischievous type—bright, slightly daring."

And that's that. It's simple—and awfully smart!

Mystery at Styles

A Mystery Serial That Defies Solution

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

"The sun soon dried me off," he added, "but I'm afraid my appearance is very disreputable."

At this juncture, Mrs. Inglethorp called to Cynthia from the hall, and the girl ran out.

"Just carry up my despatch-case, will you dear? I'm going to bed."

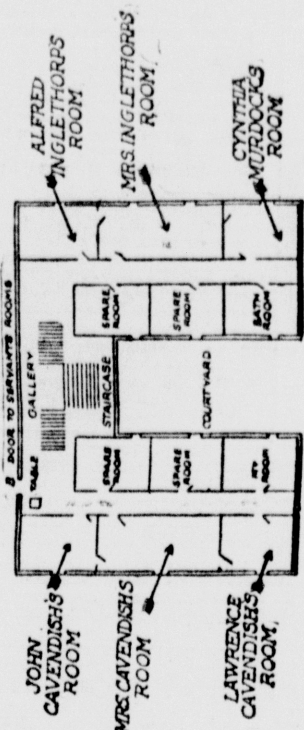

The door into the hall was a wide one. I had risen when Cynthia did, John was close by me. There were therefore three witnesses who could swear that Mrs. Inglethorp was carrying her coffee, as yet untasted, in her hand.

My evening was utterly and entirely spoilt by the presence of Dr. Bauerstein. It seemed to me the man would never go. He rose at last, however, and I breathed a sigh of relief.

"I'll walk down to the village with you," said Mr. Inglethorp. "I must see our agent over those estate accounts." He turned to John. "No one need sit up. I will take the latchkey."

CHAPTER 5.

To make this part of my story clear, I append the following plan of the first floor of Styles. The servants' rooms are reached through the door B. They have no communication with the right wing, where the Inglethorps' rooms were situated.

It seemed to be in the middle of the night when I was awakened by Lawrence Cavendish. He had a candle in his hand, and the agitation of his face told me at once that something was seriously wrong.

"What's the matter?" I asked, sitting up in bed, and trying to collect my scattered thoughts.

"We are afraid my mother is very ill. She seems to be having some kind of fit. Unfortunately she has locked herself in."

"I'll come at once."

I sprang out of bed, and, pulling on a dressing gown, followed Lawrence along the passage and the gallery to the right wing of the house.

John Cavendish joined us, and one or two of the servants were standing around in a state of awe-stricken excitement. Lawrence turned to his brother.

"What do you think we had better do?"

Never, I thought, had his indecision of character been more apparent.

John rattled the handle of Mrs. Inglethorp's door violently, but with no effect. It was obviously locked or bolted on the inside. The whole household was aroused by now. The most alarming sounds were audible from the interior of the room. Clearly something must be done.

"Try going through Mr. Inglethorp's room, sir," cried Dorcas. "Oh, the poor mistress!"

Suddenly I realized that Alfred Inglethorp was not with us—that he alone had given no sign of his presence. John opened the door of his room. It was pitch dark, but Lawrence was following with the candle, and by its feeble light we saw that the bed had not been slept in, and that there was no sign of the room having been occupied.

We went straight to the connecting door. That, too, was locked or bolted on the inside. What was to be done?"

"Oh, dear, sir," cried Dorcas, wringing her hands, "what ever shall we do?"

"We must try and break the door in, I suppose. It'll be a tough job, though. Here, let one of the maids go down and wake Baily and tell him to go for Dr. Wilkins at once."

Now then, we'll have a try at the door. Half a moment, though, isn't there a door into Miss Cynthia's room?"

"Yes, sir, but that's always bolted. It's never been undone."

"Well, we might just see."

He ran rapidly down the corridor to Cynthia's room. Mary Cavendish was there, sh' king the girl—who must have been an unusually sound sleeper—and trying to wake her.

In a moment or two he was back.

"No good. That's bolted too. We must break in the door. I think this one is a shade less solid than the one in the passage."

We strained and heaved together. The frame-work of the door was solid, and for a long time it resisted our efforts, but at last we felt it give beneath our weight, and finally, with a resounding crash, it was burst open.

As Mrs. Inglethorp was lying on the bed, her whole form agitated by violent convulsions, in one of which she must have overturned the table beside her. As we entered, however, her limbs relaxed, and she fell back upon the pillows.

John strode across the room, and lit the gas. Turning to Annie, one of the housemaids, he sent her downstairs to the dining room for brandy. Then he went across to his mother whilst I unbolted the door that gave on the corridor.

I turned to Lawrence, to suggest that I had better leave them now that there was no further need of my services, but the words were frozen on my lips. Never have I seen such a ghastly look on any man's face. He was white as chalk, the candle he held in his shaking hand was sputtering onto the carpet, and his eyes, petrified with terror, or some such kindred emotion, stared fixedly over my head at a point on the further wall.

It was as though he had seen something that turned him to stone. I instinctively followed the direction of his eyes, but I could see nothing unusual. The still feebly flickering ashes in the grate, and the row of prim ornaments on the mantelpiece, were surely harmless enough.

The violence of Mrs. Inglethorp's attack seemed to be passing. She was able to speak in short gasps.

"Better now—very sudden—stupid of me—to lock myself in."

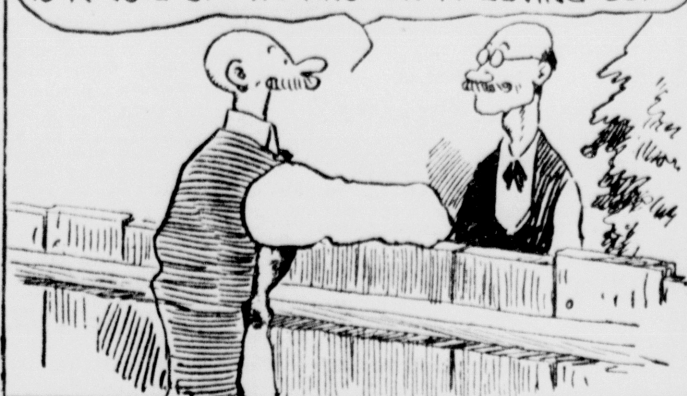

A shadow fell on the bed and, looking up, I saw Mary Cavendish standing near the door with her arm supporting the girl, who looked utterly dazed and unlike herself. Her face was heavily flushed, and she yawned repeatedly.

"Poor Cynthia is quite frightened," said Mrs. Cavendish in a low clear voice. She herself, I noticed, was dressed in her white hand smock. Then it must be later than I thought. I saw that a faint streak of daylight was showing through the curtains of the windows, and that the clock in the mantelpiece pointed to close upon five o'clock.

course, flawless. In his handling of the crowds in Lhasa and at the natch house Niblo shows that same true and beautiful technique which has made "Ben Hur" the film sensation of recent years. DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
 I am a girl nineteen years old, and considered good-looking, and very popular.

I have been going out with several boy friends in the past. But I have met two whom I care more for.

One considers me more than a friend and tells me he loves me with all his heart, but I can not see him often on account of his work, and it is hard for me to stay home, when he does not come up to see me.

On the other hand, I have only known one of the boys for two weeks and he has asked me to be his wife. He comes from a very respected family and does everything to please me, but it's hard to decide.

Do you think this is true love? When shall I choose?

LONESOME BOB.
 LONESOME BOB: I don't think you can love either of the young men, Lonesome Bob, for if you were really in love, you would surely know it. Treat them both in a nice friendly way, but explain that you do not love them. Perhaps in time you may decide which of the two you care most for, but in the meantime, I shouldn't give any decision that might cause unhappiness in the future.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
 If a girl is engaged to a boy and has been wearing the engagement ring and decides she doesn't want him, can he make her marry him?

BLUE HEAVEN.
 BLUE HEAVEN: No indeed, my dear, he cannot force you to do anything you don't wish to. When you return his ring he should understand that the engagement is broken which leaves you free to go about with your other friends.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
 I am a girl 28 years of age and secretly married to a man of 35. He has met me he made an agreement with his mother that he would stay single until she died. If she knew he was married it would break her heart.

I am so heartbroken from having to run from pillar to post as my parents are not living and I am staying with friends. I do not work, so I couldn't board. Do you think it would be best for me to quit him? He has promised to leave home in the Fall after he gets all of his business together, but I don't see how I can wait that long.

WORRIED.
 WORRIED: Secret marriages may be very romantic my dear, but one always suffers terribly for the little romance that comes from them. Why doesn't your husband get you a little apartment? It would be so much better than having to depend on one's friends. Or you could go to work until such time as you two could be together. Having nothing to occupy your mind, nor your time, probably makes you magnify everything, my

"DEVIL DANCER" AMERICAN HIT

A unique locale and a fast moving melodramatic story formed the very adequate background for the presentation last night of the ever popular Gilda Gray at the American theater. The vehicle was Samuel Goldwyn's production, "The Devil Dancer."

In offering Miss Gray as a sacred temple dancer of faraway, mysterious romantic Tibet, the author and the adapter, Harry Hervey and Alice D. C. Miller, have handled their story materials in an artful and clever manner. Miss Gray's international fame as a dancer draws thousands to any theatre—and in "The Devil Dancer" we find a very acceptable combination of the Gray torchbearer talent at its best—and a logical melodramatic story simply loaded with action.

Oliver Brook appears opposite the star. This leading man climbs steadily and surely upwards on a firm foundation of consistent, careful, forceful characterizations. As the English explorer who finds the story dancer in the sacred halls of Lhasa and affects her rescue Brook gives a delightful performance.

The star enters the picture as the successor to the sacred dancer, killed with her lover by being burned alive for the sin of unfaithfulness. The superstitious natives look with awe at this white woman amongst them, the orphan of a murdered missionary, left at the temple many years before.

With the death of the previous dancer as a menace, the love affair and elopement of Stephen and Takla take their place in a procession of events which include humorous and pathetic incidents of Tibetan manners, in conflict with British Indian society, the kidnapping of Takla by Hassan, an itinerant showman, the dancing of Takla in a match house, the pursuit of both Stephen and the avenging minions of the Grand Lama—and the climax in a striking fight between the contending factions.

The well-knit plot is illuminated at regular intervals by the colorful, exotic, always fascinating dancing of Miss Gray. In the devil dance she gives us a new and most interesting conception.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
 If a girl is engaged to a boy and has been wearing the engagement ring and decides she doesn't want him, can he make her marry him?

BLUE HEAVEN.
 BLUE HEAVEN: No indeed, my dear, he cannot force you to do anything you don't wish to. When you return his ring he should understand that the engagement is broken which leaves you free to go about with your other friends.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
 I am a girl 28 years of age and secretly married to a man of 35. He has met me he made an agreement with his mother that he would stay single until she died. If she knew he was married it would break her heart.

I am so heartbroken from having to run from pillar to post as my parents are not living and I am staying with friends. I do not work, so I couldn't board. Do you think it would be best for me to quit him? He has promised to leave home in the Fall after he gets all of his business together, but I don't see how I can wait that long.

WORRIED.
 WORRIED: Secret marriages may be very romantic my dear, but one always suffers terribly for the little romance that comes from them. Why doesn't your husband get you a little apartment? It would be so much better than having to depend on one's friends. Or you could go to work until such time as you two could be together. Having nothing to occupy your mind, nor your time, probably makes you magnify everything, my

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, July 17.—With the market inactive, prices of stocks were irregular during the forenoon today with the tendency downward. Pool operators bid up a few of the industrial specialties in the hope of attracting an outside following but did not meet with much success except in a few instances. Bullish enthusiasm continued on the wane.

Atlantic Refining was down one-half at $139 shortly before noon after having opened at $138 3/4. This stock has been under pressure on recurring rumors that the Rockefeller interests are sellers. General Electric had eased off 1/2 to 142 5/8. American Can 3/8 to $13 1/2. Curtiss Aeroplane 1/2 to 97 1/2. Hudson Motor 3/4 to 79 1/2. American Telephone and Telegraph 1/2 to 73 7/8. and Studebaker 1/8 to 67. Other issues held firm or moved up somewhat in face of this downward drift. Wright Aero was unchanged at 138. Radio Corporation advanced 1 1/4 to 16 1/2 and Montgomery Ward jumped 2 1/4 to 154 7/8.

A bullish factor was the decrease of $251,000,000 in Brokers' Loan and Discounts issued at the close of last week. It was interpreted in some quarters as foreshadowing another reduction this week.

150 POISONED IN NEW ENGLAND

Chemists Analyze Food From Chain Restaurant.

BOSTON, July 17.—Chemists and physicians today were engaged in an examination and analysis of food from a large chain restaurant system in an effort to discover the source of food poisoning of more than 150 persons, including 60 employees of the Ford Motor company's assembling plant in Somerville.

While hospitals filled with victims in great pain reported that only one patient was in a serious way, the chemical and medical experts of the state, city, and restaurant system were first looking into samples of chocolate cream pie eaten from box lunches by all the victims. The chocolate cream pie ingredients—milk, eggs, flour and chocolate—were being closely examined. Seventy-two persons were under treatment in five Boston hospitals, having suffered a night of pain. At least 75 more were at their homes, having been treated at hospitals or by family physicians.

The first report of the city-wide poisoning came late yesterday afternoon when workmen suddenly began to collapse in the Ford plant in Somerville. After more than 60 Ford company workers had been taken to hospitals, word came from Charlestown that workers in the Revere Sugar refinery company's plant and the S. M. Howes company's plant had been stricken.

TUNNEY'S KIN WINS BATTLE

Detective, Without Ballyhoo, Captures Robbery Suspect.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Detective Tom Tunney, who has a brother Gene, went into battle today without benefit of ballyhoo, extended training or the lure of a half million dollar purse. Out of the scuffle, brief but spirited, came the arrest of George Williams, the recovery of $25,000 of broken up jewelry and what Tom Tunney and his sparring partners believe will be the solution of a $50,000 daylight hold-up. Williams, who is 30, was captured "on information" in the lobby of the Century hotel. He gave Detectives Tunney, Jerome Butler and Dave Wallace a brisk fight before they got him in hand.
